Not illustrated. 1906 Excerpt: .a new variable z by the relation $z = z - px$, and assigning other associated variables in the form $y = y$, $i = q$, $- = p$, $p = a$. The quantity $p P + q Q$ which occurs in the modified system is obtained from $w(X + pZ) + qQ$, by making the above substitutions; this does not vanish in general, and so the process can be applied to the modified equation: the integral of the original equation can be deduced as before. Note 1. Both in Cauchy's method and in Darboux's modification, an integral has been obtained which has been declared a general integral. Its expression certainly contains an arbitrary function in the least restricted case; but this property is not, of itself, sufficient to secure the character in the customary form. A general integral is given by the elimination of a between...
