Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Meat Biscuit: Invented, Patented, and Manufactured; May 1, 1851 Messrs. Munn Co. in a letter to me on the subject, under date of 24th October, 1849, said that the mode of preparing the concentrated liquid, or paste beef, has been long known to the world, such as is described in Gray s or Liebig s chemistry; but, as combined with flour, and made into bread, as claimed by you, is entirely new to us, and we do not think any such process has ever been used before your discovery. The plan is, in our opinion, a valuable one. I am aware that young meats and those portions of the animal containing a large proportion of gelatine have been brought into solids like glue; but this of itself is not sufficiently nutritious to sustain vigorous health, or scarcely life. I was myself endeavoring to make a paste-cake from the extract of meat when I made the discovery. Impressed with the importance of a concentrated nutritious food for travellers to the Pacific coast, I had put up an apparatus by which I reduced one hundred and twenty pounds of young beef meat to ten pounds of essence or extract, of a consistency like thick sugar-house syrup. I could not slice nor dry it; and unwilling to lose my labor, it occurred to me, after various experiments, to mix the article with good flour and bake it. To my great satisfaction, the bread or biscuit was found to contain all the primary principles of the meat, and with a better flavor than simple beef soup, thickened with flour.
