Many books have been written and will continue to be written about the intricacies and mysteries of the mind. The very multiplicity and diversity of mental processes and the dominant role they play in determining happiness or misery, success or failure, indicate the interest everyone should feel in them. Out of the wealth of data, sometimes conflicting, which has been laboriously gathered by scientific investigators, sufficient information has been correlated to make at least certain mental reactions understandable. Theories based upon this attested knowledge are found to be of practical use in everyday life. Nobody can afford to treat carelessly or in a scoffing spirit the trend of scientific thought on so vital a subject. The brain is the controlling sensitizer-the switchboard-of the entire organism, organic and functional. An insight into its workings cannot fail to be invaluable to any individual. The scientist is no longer satisfied with the older effect psychology which confined itself to observing the results merely of brain activity, but he looks deeper and searches for causes and reasons. If he can discover why a person behaves in such and such a way under certain circumstances rather than in some other manner, he will in time be able to regulate the cause, i. e., the mental process, and wisely to direct the effect, i. e., the behaviour itself. We are beginning to realize that men and women, despite hereditary influences, are not the victims of fatalistic predetermination. They can in large measure become captains of their souls-if they only know how. Knowledge of the inner self is essential to self-mastery. No human being can hope to guide his own...
