Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The North and the South It seems to be time, in view of the circumstances in which the country is now placed, and of the great controversy respecting slavery revived by Pierce and Douglas, and their southern allies in the extinct Whig party of the South, the Badgers, the Joneses, and the Claytons - a controversy whose conclusion no man can foresee - it is time, we say, to examine the point of which the South makes the greatest account, which it constantly employs by way of both defence and offence, and without which, indeed, it would often be difficult for southern champions to have anything to say at all. This point is succinctly expressed in the following extract from The Union, Past and Future, a pamphlet published at Charleston, in 1850, widely circulated at the time, and since republished, in whole or in part, in various other places throughout the Southern States: - The North possesses none of the material elements of greatness, in which the South abounds, whether we regard the productions of the soil, the access to the markets of the world, or the capacity of military defence. While the slave States produce nearly everything within themselves, the free States will soon depend on them even for food, as they now do for rice, sugar, tobacco, and cotton - the employment of their ships in southern commerce, the employment of their labor in the manufacture of southern cotton, and all that they can purchase of other countries with the fabrics of that great southern staple. We have shown that the price of that staple must be permanently raised; how would the manufacturing...
